One of this year's chic-est and most risqué items was the Just In Case condom compacts and their message "Safe is Sexy."

Oscar-nominated director Jason Reitman commented: "I love it." Sexy reality star Kloe Kardashian added: "I know... Just in case and a champagne party." Jay Rodriguez from 'Queer Eye' giggled, "Safe sex just got sexier!"

Proud event host Melissa Rivers concluded, "I'm happy to endorse this product! How much better to have this JIC compact by the bedside or in your purse without having condoms all around! Safe sex never goes out of style!"

Along with worldwide sales Just In Case's chic "must have" product, they intend to spread the word of empowerment and personal responsibility of safe sex to women everywhere and join in the efforts to further AIDS research and prevention, and women's health through contributing 5% of our gross profits to these areas.
