

> Travel

Email Print DIGG this Del.icio.us

T T T

2007 Holiday Gift Guide :: The Traveler

by Jason Salzenstein
EDGE National Style & Travel Editor
Sunday Dec 9, 2007

For frequent travelers, stress is a constant. Being way from friends and family, long hours on dry airplanes, not having a normal routine, sleeping in unfamiliar beds... it all adds up to a lot of stress, pain, and longing for home. If you've got someone on your list who does a lot of traveling, EDGE Style & Travel Editor Jason Salzenstein has some suggestions for fabulous gifts that are sure to please. Check 'em out!

TITAN X-2 4-Wheel Flash

As someone who calls airplanes and airports second homes, I've had my share of experience with luggage of all shapes, sizes and styles. I've also tested a bazillion pieces- from bargain basement to high end- and can say without a doubt that when it comes to luggage, you definitely get what you pay for. This doesn't mean you have to spend a small fortune on a tiny bag (unless it's Louis Vuitton!), but you should definitely look at your luggage as an investment.

I've loved TITAN luggage since the first time I saw it, and it's what I'm still using some time later.

Everything TITAN makes is lightweight, extremely strong, durable, and not least of all, stylish. For frequent travelers who need to check a bag, it's best to get everything in one suitcase, and still make sure there's a bit of room left for unexpected purchases, gifts, etc. My choice for trips of about a week (or long weekends with lots of shopping!) is the TITAN X2 4-Wheel Flash 29. This large-size trolley is a traveler's dream, not only because of its light weight, maneuverability and incredibly convenient interior packing system, but because it comes in yellow (which is actually orange, but who's counting) which makes it extremely easy to spot on the luggage carousel.

Like all TITAN pieces, the X2 4-Wheel Flash series is hard-sided; it's made of polycarbonate, which is much more durable than ballistic nylon and also happens to be recyclable. It's water resistant, the wheels move in any direction, and it features a protected exterior zipper, low-profile recessed handles, and an ergonomic telescoping handle. Inside you'll find a removable garment and toiletry bag; outside you've got a TSA approved combination lock. Best of all, it's protected by TITAN's "No Matter What" lifetime guarantee.

The X2 4-Wheel Flash series- and all TITAN luggage- can be found at better luggage stores nationwide. For stores near you go to www.TITANluggageUSA.com